YOUR DOG

Your dog is your world,
From the time he's a pup,
Till he is going to be twelve,
And starts acting grownup.

He'll chew on your shoes,
And lose your best slippers,
Shy away from his bath,
And stay clear of the clippers.

He'll tree Tommy's cat,
Act scared of a sonic bomb,
Then turn right around,
And howl at the moon.

He'll perform all his tricks
When you're there all alone,
But when company's there,
He'll just chew on his bone.

But he's yours, all yours,
And you'll defend him forever,
Be he large, small, dumb or clever.

For your dog is something
Which no one denies,
When they look at the proud shining
look in your eyes.

This poem is for dog lovers,
Both near and afar,
So good luck with your dog, wherever you are.

APES (The Animals Most Like Human)

Of all the animals, the apes are the most like humans. The ape belongs to the same group of mammals we belong to. The group is called the primate group.

Apes do not have tails. In this way they are different from the monkeys, who are also primates.

All apes, except gorillas, usually spend most of their time in trees.

The gorillas are the largest and most powerful of the apes. A large gorilla may weigh 400 pounds or more. Gorillas walk on all fours and have ears much like ours.

Apes have some of the same diseases that humans have, such as appendicitis.

In America, apes are usually seen in zoos. Their real homes are in tropical lands near the Equator.

WHAT IS A MOTHER

- are many titles to choose from,
- why not take your pick?
- mother is a comforting nurse,
- loves her loved ones when they are sick.
- mother is a money bag,
- your piggy bank runs low.

She's a tailor when something needs
mending,
Luckily she knows how to sew.

As a baker she comes in handy,
When birthdays creep up on her.
Her driving skill is always useful,
For she's usually the family's chauffeur.

Her family fits close together,
Like a hand fits into a glove.

And all for the simple reason,
She knit them together with love.
